NEW YORK, WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 26, 1887.

IS IT MURDER OR SUICIDE?

MUCH MYSTERY SURROUNDING THE DEATH OF LOW HE YOUNG.

Yee Sing, His Partner, who Knows About which Young's Throat was Cut is Yee Sing's-Detectives Searching for Him.

HE brand-new razor which drew the lifeblood of Low He Yong at 62 Delancey street yesterday was not his. It belonged to his partner, Yee Sing, and Yee Sing has disappeared.

This is but one of the circumstances which east a shadow of doubt and suspicion over the statements of the other Chinamen and the theory of the police that Low He Yong's death was spicidal.

The three partners who ran the laundry were Yee Sing, Low He Yong and Ah Dock. came from China together eight years ago, and for six years kept a laundry in Mott street. They did a thriving business and must have saved a pile of money. Low He Yong had a wife in China, and it was known that he intended to return within a known that he intended to return within a short time to the Flowery Land.

Moh Lung, who works in the cigar store at No. 8 Mott street, says Yong visited the Chinese shipping agency in that street one day last week and asked as to the cost of the overland and ocean passage. He was in Chinatown the whole of Monday night and spoke of giving up work. He said his health was bad and he wanted to go home. From the way he talked his friends thought he had saved up from three to five thousand dollars. They do not believe he committed snicide.

dollars. They do not believe he committed snicide.

There is something very suspicious about the way the crime came to the notice of the police. Customers who went to the store yesterday morning found the door locked, and no one appeared to be at work inside. Curtains were fixed over the window and over the glass partition over the door in such a way that no view of the interior could be had. It has since been learned that Ah Dock and Ah Hop, a man who worked for the firm, were down in Mott street getting advice from their fellow-conntrymen what should be done with the body. It was not until 3 o'clock in the afternoon that Coroner Nugent was notified and he was told that the man had just been found dead in bed.

He went there and found the corpse lying on a cot in the rear room. A great gash was in the left side of the throat, and Ah Dock produced a razor which he said he found on the floor. The dead man's right hand whs doubled up under his body, a circumstance which in itself almost forbids the theory of suicide. The body was cold and stiff and the young man had apparently been dead many hours. The blood had congealed in a ghastly pool on the floor.

Ah Dock and the other Chinaman told the the floor.

Ah Dock and the other Chinaman told the Coroner they had just found the body and that Yong must have cut his throat while they were ironing in the other room. They said he had been sick for several months and was very despondent. They hid the fact that there was another member of the firm and that he had not been seen since daybreak.

Coroner Nugent gave a permit to remove the body to an undertaker pending an investigation, and it was not till the dead-wagon halted in front of the door that the police were aware of what had happened. Detective Warner was passing at the time and he went in. The body had been straightened ent by the plausible story told by the launscent by the plausible story told by the laundrymen.

An official from the Chinese Consulate was at the store this morning, being prompted to an investigation by the statements of Mol Lung and other friends of the dead man.

The strange part of the affair is that no money or papers were found on the dead man, or in the narrow quarters which he occupied at the laundry. Ah Dock says he does not know where Yong's money is, but that Yu Sing will make it all right when he turns up.

Capt. Allaire is not yet prepared to say whether he looks upon the case as one of murder or suicide, but it is known that his ward detectives have been looking for Yee Sing since early last evening and are still enged in the search.

ward detectives have been looking for Yee Sing since early last evening and are still engaged in the search.

The body is at Wames Naughton's undertaking establishment, 35 Mott street, awaiting the action of the Coroner. When Yong's friends get permission to bury it there will be a fine funeral. Scraps of consecrated rice paper will be scattered behind the hearse all the way to the Evergeen Cemetery, the idea being that the Cavil will be so busy picking them up that he will never be able to fix his talons on the corpse. Boiled chicken, cooked rice, chopsticks, a cup of alcohol and lighted candles will be put in the grave to furnish Low He Yong for his celestial journey.

This case recalls the mysterious murder of the laundryman, Yu Chee Sing, at 117 Clinton street, three years ago. He was found dead in his store one morning with eleven terrible wounds in his body, and a murderous creese in his heart. The crime was evidently prompted by motives of revenge and three of the man's partners were arrested on suspicion, but it could not be fixed on any of them.

Suicide among the Chinese population is almost unknown. Not a single case has ever Suicide among the Chinese population is almost unknown. Not a single case has ever happened before in this city. The Celestials believe that the man who takes his own life is forever barred out from the delights of the Flowery Kingdom. Deputy Coroner Jenkins held an autopsy this morning.

Medical Students Clubbed.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] MONTREAL, Oct. 26. -- For several days the medical students of the four city universities have been at war with the police and the city has been kept in a state of turmoil. The feeling reached its height Monday night, when a large body of police were notified that four hundred students would be at the Academy of Music to attend the initial per-formance of the Grau French Opera Compeny. The police made things lively for them, and when they emerged from the theatre fell upon them and clubbed them unmercifully.

OLD MR. LEVY WENT HOME.

Policemen Return Good for Ill and Sen-Him Home to His Dinner.

A shabby old man, thin and bowed, was feebly crossing Fifth avenue at Thirtieth street at 5.30 o'clock last evening. A hansom cab was coming down, and the driver held up a little to let the old man make connection with the curb-stone. The old man did tion with the curb-stone. The old man did not seem to notice the cab. His angle of reflection was not equal to the angle of incidents, that is sure.

The horse bowled him down as if he were a nine-pin, the cab gayly rolled over him and the old gentleman lay limp and long on the pavement, like a figure in a transplanted wood-cut of a sensational novel. A softhearted policeman gathered him up and sathim on the curbstone, with his back against a lamp-post. The old man's shiny plug hat, badly "knocked out," lay crushed at his side. After a Parthian glance at the week he had made, the "cabby" skurried off at a lively pace without leaving his address for the Coroner.

lively pace without leaving his address for the Coroner.

There was no Coroner in it, however, for the old man, when he was stood up, protested against going to the station-house.

No n'cessity," he murmured. "'m goin' home to dinner."

He was bleeding from a cut over his left eye. His shabby coat and shiny trousers looked the worse from being used to clean Fifth avenue with, but for an old man who had just been knocked down and run over by a hansom he was very little rattled.

At the station, he described himself as Andrew Levy, of 210 West Thirty-second street, fifty-seven years of age, single and of no business. The police recognized him as a great informer against their fraternity and a mild sort of crank. They heaped coals of fire on his head by washing and tying it up, and then Mr. Levy went home to his dinner. He did not exhibit any trace or liquor.

an active part in the Fenian raid about twenty years ago.

Mrs. A. K. Gove, of No. 426 Saratoga street, East Boston, says that she knows Dr. Grant and his history. She says her brother, Dr. McSheedy, of East Boston, formed his acquaintance while travelling in France in 1859. They came home together and separated in New York. There he married a German girl, whom he afterwards deserted and enlisted in a New York regiment for the war. In 1869 Dr. Grant married Mrs. Gove's sister, Mrs. Jane Delaney, and after stealing $20,000 of her money deserted her.

He was next heard of in Poughkeepsic, N. Y., where he was arrested for bigamy and sentenced to Sing Sing. He was pardoned before his sentence expired, and went to Europe. Two years ago he visited Mrs. Gore's sister in Chicago, and tried to persuade her to let their daughter accompany him, promising to send her to a boarding-school. He claimed that he was the illegitimate son of Victor Emanuel, King of Italy, and was exiled for conspiring against the throne.

Mrs. Gove will endeavor to obtain possession of the property that he left for the benefit of her daughter.

He is the only survivor of his class, while no member of the succeeding class, 1816, is alive, and but four graduates of 1817 survive, two of the latter being Mr. George Bancroft and Mr. Samuel E. Louis F. Post Not to Withdraw.

A rumor was in circulation to-day that Louis F. ost, candidate for District-Attorney on the United Labor party ticket, was about to withdraw. At EVENING WORLD reporter found Mr. Post in his office in Park row and asked if there was any foundation for the report.

'Not the slightest," was the reply. 'I did not ask for the nomination. It came to me voluntarily, and when the party asks me to withdraw it will be time for me to do so."

Won't Resign Just Yet.

The rumors as to the intended resignation o Corporation Counsel Morgan J. O'Brien and Park Commissioner Theodore W. Myers are premature. Both gentlemen were seen by an Evenino World reporter this afternoon. They said they would not resign in any event until after the election. If elected to the Judgeship and Comptrollership respectively they can retain their present offices until Dec. 31.

The Westernland Ahead of Time. The Red Star steamer Westernland, from Ant-

They were unable to account for the origin of the rumor. The vessel arrived a day ahead of time.

LEO'S CONCILIATORY MESSAGE.

His Suggestion to the French Government Bernhardt was Displeased.

[SPECIAL CABLE TO THE EVENING WORLD.] Paris, Oct. 26.—Behaine, the French Ambassador to the Holy See, has arrived in Paris. His mission is to present the con-ciliatory message of Leo XIII. to the French Government. The Pope points out that the moment is opportune if the Republic wishes to gain the support of the French bishops and clergy and, in a great measure, their flocks, Leo does not ask for an ostentatious return of religious orders, seeing that they were never thoroughly expelled. Monks preach in their habits in the churches of Paris, and, although they adopt the dress of the secular clergy in the street monastic white or brown is quite visible.

The sale of "La Tosca," Sardou's new play to Fanny Davenport has gravely displease Bernhardt, who wished to buy it herself or to have it sold to Grau. At one time Bern hardt threatened to throw up her engagement and go back to America. All this has now been smoothed over.

Residences Over the Green Ridge Colliery is Great Danger From a Cave-in. [SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.]

SCRANTON, Oct. 26 .- The residents of the Sixth Ward, Dunmore, whose homes are over the workings of the Green Ridge Colliery, passed last night in fear and terror made so by the caving in of a large territory in that section. For some time there has been more or less working of the roof in the first and second veins of the colliery, owing to the continual robbing of the pillars, which had not been replaced by sufficiently strong timbers to maintain the great surface area timbers to maintain the great surface area above them.

The first noticeable signs of the impending crash were observed Monday afternoon, and the several hundred men and boys who were at work in the bowels of the earth were at once ordered to leave the mine. They had no sooner got out of the slope than they were greeted with a roaring cloud of dust mingled with debris and broken timbers, showing that a large portion of roof had fallen down. There was no settling of the surface, however, until during the night. The people were greatly excited yesterday morning when they found visible signs of the interior wreckage making themselves apparent upon the surface.

Great open fissures, two to five inches wide, extended hundreds of feet in an easterly and westerly direction; the wells were all drained dry and many houses were slightly shaken, so that it was impossible to close and open doors. Near Johnson's store the effects of the cave-in are most prominently visible. The open fissures extend across the Dunmore street car tracks; the rear part of the store is detached from the former, hanging away from it like a leaning tower. All work about the colliery has been suspended and Mine Inspector Blewitt has forbidden any one to enter the mine until the surface workings are over.

MUSLIN FOR THE ANARCHISTS' SHROUDS. A Report that Gov. Oglesby Will Grant the

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] CHICAGO, Oct. 26.-The latest talk about the condemned Anarchists is that even if the United States Supreme Court decision should be adverse, Gov. Oglesby will grant a brief respite. He has been appealed to, it is said, to give the men more than two weeks to prepare for death. The inmates of the women's cells at the jail are reported to be very much disturbed by an official request that they help make the shrouds and caps to be used at the execution of the condemned men. Some of the inmates were willing to do the work required, but others were strongly opposed to render any aid. It may be necessary to have the work done outside the jail. The unbleached muslin has already been purchased. Each shroud will be shaped like a bag, only with holes at both ends, and gathered closely at the top. The hoods will be half a yard in width and about the same length, gathered together at the top, which will be about ten inches across.

Enthusiasm Over the Nomination of Nicoll and Martine.

local political candidates as that with which the nomination of Mr. Martine has been received. Popular feeling has triumphed, it is felt, and the people's candidates for District-Attorney and for Judge of the new Criminal Court have been indorsed and nominated by the Republican County Convention. The nominations are the topic of the day at hotels and public resorts. The action of the Republican convention is praised by every one except the friends of the rank and file of the two machines are privately expressing the opinion that the "combine" ticket will be defeated.

Col. John R. Fellows was seen at the Hoffman House this morning. He is expressing his opinion of Mr. Nicoll, and he also feels very much put out at Mr. Martine. Col. Fellows sees defeat staring him in the face, but he will not admit it.

Some of his friends are advising him to withdraw from the contest. The members of the Democratic State Committee would be pleased if he would withdraw.

A friend of Col. Fellows said: "Col. Fellows is not the kind of a man to get out of a race. I believe he will stick to his candidacy, although he might know that he will be defeated. I am sorry to see him in this fight."

Police Justice Power still feels confident that the Union ticket can be elected. He may be resting his hope on some sort of a deal. He will stop at nothing to elect Col. Fellows.

NICOLL SAYS HE WILL ACCEPT.

Mr. Nicoll is in Albany to-day before the Court of Appeals attending to the Sharp case. Before he went he said to a WORLD case. Before he went at reporter:

Under the circumstances I cannot decline the Republican nomination and the other nomination which, I understand, will be offered to me. And you may depend upon it that being once in the fight, to which I feel I have been summoned by the voice of the people of this city, I shall use every honorable means to win, and if elected I will do all in my power to make the government. will do all in my power to make the government of this city as clean as that of any city on the face of the earth. I shall make no distinction of per-sons, but, encouraged by the people's confidence, I shall, with strict impartia ity, enforce the penal law of the State against all offenders, rich or poor, weak or powerful.

The Republicans have nominated Mr. Martine at my request, and have offered me the nomination on the distinct understanding that I sm a thorough Democrat and shall continue to be so. Such a nomination coming after my previous refusal to accept it will make me absolutely free, fearless and independent to discharge my duties without regard to bosses, parties, factions, organizations, halls or combinations of any kind.

Mr. Nicoll will research. Mr. Nicoll will return from Albany Friday night of Saturday morning.

AN APPEAL TO INDEPENDENT CITIZENS. At their convention last night the Republicans unanimously adopted the following appeal to independent citizens:

licans unanimously adopted the following appeal to independent citizens:

The Republican party of this city of New York in County Convention assembled, makes the following appeal to its members and to our citizens in general:

Recognizing that in municipal politics occasions may arise when conspicuous merit in a tried public officer of opposite faith from our own commands consideration superior to the claims of partisanship, this convention has placed in nomination for District-Attorney Mr. De Lancey Nicoli, whose honesty, ability and unitiring energy as Assistant to the present incumbent of that office entitle him to promotion at the hands of his fellow-citizens, irrespective of party.

Our party in the past has frequently showed itself superior to parties and consideration in the election of candidates for the judiciary. The occasion has now arisen when the Republicans, in recognition of tried merit and integrity, have indersed the name of the present District-Attorney for election to the new judgeship.

The Republican Convention having thus shown its readiness to reward conspicuous merit in judicial and quasi judicial officers regardless of partisan claims, has completed its county ticket by the nomination of Republicans of conspicuous merit.

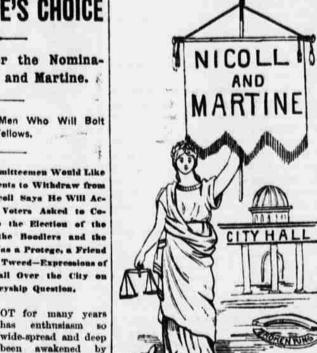

The Republican party of this city piedges itself to honesty and business methods in the administration of these public trusts in the municipal government which it now seeks to place in the hands of the candidates it has put in nomination.

We believe that public officers should be heal to a strict accountability and should be men of the highest qualifications. The ticket now presented by this convention is the best carnest of our sincerity in the enunciation of these principles.

FELLOWS ALWAYS THE BOODLER'S FRIEND. The cohorts of Col. Fellows are very angry The cohorts of Col. Fellows are very angry because the men opposed to him persist in parading the Colonel as a powerful pleader for boodlers and "Boss" Tweed. Col. Fellows was a protege of Tweed and was Assistant District-Attorney under Samuel B. Garvin when the Tweed Ring smash-up came. Tweed's influence got him the position. People who were eager for prompt prosecution of the Tweed gang used to say that it was exceedingly fortunate for them that Col. Fellows was in a position where he was able to be of service. ecutions back.

It was through "Boss" Tweed that Col.
Fellows came to New York. Tweed promised to look out for him and he did. Fellows never lost an opportunity to show his grati-tude for the old man's protection. He was always willing to speak in his behalf, and did not consider his office as public pros-ceutor a bar to making stump speeches on behalf of the ringsters, of which Garvin, his chief at that time. was considered to be one. A month before Tweed was arrested, when the full knowledge of his corruptiou was in possession of the District-Attorney's office, he was nominated for State Treasurer as a "vindication" of the charge made against him by intelligent citizens. There was a big ratification at which Col. Fellows spoke in defense of Tweed. In arraigning the committee of citizens who were trying to drive the bosses out of power, Col. Fellows said: "There is another reason why you should refuse to lend your support to these men. Who is it, forsooth, who are working out our political salvation? I have no words to speak my detestation and scorn for those who have gone over from our own ranks to the other side. [Tilden, O'Conor and the Democratic Reformers were alluded to.] I find these men in this misgoverned, this debauched, this corrupt city; I find that they have made vast fortunes under the forms and the rule that they affect to despise; I find that they have been hungry aspirants for office, and which they have failed to obtain a public indorsement of by the ballots of the people."

Col. Fellows urged the audience to trust those men in the government of their city affairs who had been found worthy of their confidence and who had so long served them with satisfaction. He commented strongly on the conduct of the Committee of Seventy, who desired to remove the conduct of the case of Haggerty from the District-Attorney's office to one of its own partisans.

Col Fellows's friends around the City Hall are not contradicting his record as an advocate of bosses and boodlers. They excuse it on the ground that it was the Colonel's duty to defend the men who had made him what he was and what he is.

Mr. Unger, who is now engaged in period covered by the boodle prosecutions.

He said to-day to an Evening World reporter
"Before the Democratic Convention assembled I made a personal canvass among some of our best business men and financiers with a view to their making an independent nomination of Mr. Nicoll for DistrictAttorney and every man whom I then saw was not alone heartily in favor of the movem int, but was willing to take an active part in it. The attitude of the Democratic politicians at the time, however, was so favorable that we thought such a nomination inexpedient and dropped it for the time being. Among these gentlemen was William A. Wheelock, President of the Central National Bank, a dyed-in-the-wool Republican, who said although he never voted for a Democrat in his life, yet in the present campaign his ballot would count for De Lancey Nicoll.
Mr. Joseph H. Brown. Vice-President of the Following are expressions of opinion concerning the nominations which were obtained to-day by Evenino World Preporters, Police Commissioners French and McClave were in cestale s over the nominations, and declared that any other action by the convention would have been suicidal.

"The stone that the Democratic builders rejected," said Mr. French, " has become the chief in the corner of the temple of the people's rights. Nicoll will win in a canter."

John J. O'Brien, Chief of the Bureau of Elections—The spirit of independence in local politics is growing very rapidly and will be felt severely in some quarters this fall. NICOLL BOUND TO WIN.

Police Commissioner Porter thought the envass of Nicoll would be sharp and that he would give Col. Fellows a lively tussle. Police Commissioner Voorhis could see no-reason why the entire Democratic ticket should not be successful.

Police Inspector Steers—There can be but one result. Nicoll will be elected.

Henry George, ir.—Post will be the next District-Attorney. Fellows is a dead cock in the pit with Nicoll in the field.

William McCabe, United Labor candidate for President of the Board of Aldermen—Post will win to a certainty. Nicoll is a good man, but we think we can beat him.

Chair nan John McMackin, of the United Labor party—Mr. Nicoll is a good man; so is Mr. Post, and we propose to elect our man. Edward Farrell, of the United Labor party—It will be Post or Nicoll, with the chances in favor of Post.

BALTIMORE'S ELECTION DAY.

INTENSE INTEREST AND A HEAVY YOUR BEING POLLED.

The "Vest Pocket" Ballot a Feature of the Day-Gen. F. C. Latrobe Visits the 180 Precincts on His Old Gray Mare-He Thinks He Will Win-Everything Quiet so Far-A Blg Colored Vote.

[SPECIAL TO THE EVENING WORLD.] BALTIMORE, Oct. 26.—An immense vote is being polled to-day, the heaviest, it is catimated, up to this hour that was ever known in the history of Baltimore, showing how intense is the interest that is being felt in the contest. An unusual quiet prevails, which by many is considered ominous. Business centres are in many cases almost deserted, and leading merchants are congregated in the neighborhood of polling places.

The colored vote is coming in all its

The colored vote is coming in all its strength, and in one ward as many colored votes were taken in up to 10 o'clock as during the whole of the day of last election.

The heavy vest-pocket vote being cast makes it difficult to decide which side is ahead in the 180 precincts.

At 6 o'clock this morning there were hundreds in line waiting for the polling places to open. Ticket-holders are numerous, and intercept persons some distance from the polls.

This being the first time for eight years that, the Republicans have had a regular outland-out nomination, and realizing the important bearing a victory on their part would have in national affairs, they seem to be exerting their utmost strength, but no disorder of any kind has occurred up to 12 o'clock and the indications are that it will be an earnest and quiet contest and that Latrobe's majority will be about 1,500.

Gen. F. C. Latrobe, with his old gray mare that has become a feature in the campaign, has driven to nearly all the polling places, and states, as a result of observation, that he is entirely satisfied with the outlook and is confident of his election by from 3,000 to 3,500 majority.
